1 ABSTRACT

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

111

±3

14

1.5

16

₫.

A relationship call center management system and method is used in a call center by a call center manager or supervisor. relationship management system and method permits call center resources to be grouped into relationship profiles. Α relationship key field corresponding to the relationship profiles is then used to organize and display statistics within the call center. A strategy and action management system and method permits the user to build customized actions and to create including one or strategy profiles more user-defined thresholds and assigned actions to take place when the goal thresholds are met. A statistics display system presents the call center statistics in different user-defined views, for example, corresponding to one of the relationship profiles. The statistics display system also monitors the statistics and provides an indication to the user when the user-defined goal thresholds have not been met.